$1,000 Is Donated to Seed Campaign By City Council

City of Hope Responds to Appeal in Red Cross Program

EXPECT COUNTY AID

The Quorum Court to Be Asked for $2,000 Donation

The Hope city council voted a donation of $1,000 to the Hempstead county chapter of the Red Cross, to assist in the seed campaign sponsored in the drought-stricken states, at the meeting of the council last night.

Three Hope citizens presented the plea to the city council. They were: D. B. Thompson, Sr., C. C. Spragins and Hatley White.

One thousand dollars has already been advanced to the local unit of the Red Cross by the national organization, and full planting seed has been furnished to about 100 county families. The Hempstead county chapter had approximately $300 on hand, and the advance from the national Red Cross was based on the pledge to raise additional local funds.

Expect County Aid
It is expected that $2,000 will be asked from the Hempstead county government when the Quorum Court meets next month at Washington, the Red Cross requiring that its national money be matched more or less by donations from the government of the area in which the bulk of the money is actually spent.

The prime object of the relief campaign now under way is to get fall and winter feedstuffs actually planted on Hempstead county farms, to preserve livestock herds, and to reduce the probable human wants and suffering likely to arise in dead winter as a result of the recent drought.

Campaign Directors
This campaign has been directed by Hatley White, as chairman of the relief applications committee; C. C. Spragins, as chairman of finance; and by the Rev. F. A. Buddin and D. B. Thompson, of the regular county Red Cross organization.

1930 Fair Reports An Operating Loss

Good Showing Made in Face of Unusual Agricultural Season

The 1930 Southwest Arkansas Fair closed with an operating loss which was considered reasonably light in view of agricultural conditions the past season, the executive committee of the Fair association reported at a meeting yesterday in the offices of W. Homer Pigg, secretary.

Attendance dropped sharply this year compared to 1929, the loss was incurred on this point, the committee reported. Expenses had been reduced in view of the expected decline of revenues, and if attendance had been anywhere near last year's figures the Fair would have made a substantial profit. The Fair sustained a loss in the 1929 season, but the 1929 Fair wrote this off and the association is confident that 1931 will take care of the expected loss that accrued this year owing to the summer drought. The 1930 Fair was pronounced the finest in history, both for size and completeness of exhibits.

The following executive committee was appointed for 1931 at the meeting yesterday:

W. Y. Foster, T. S. Cornelius, L. M. Boswell, Thurman Rhodes, T. C. Cross, R. M. Patterson, Alex. H. Washburn and W. Homer Pigg.

Amendment Number 22 To Cut State's Expense

Governor, Treasurer and Auditor of State Comprise Board to Estimate Revenues and File Report With the State Secretary

Editor's Note—This is the fourth in a series of articles dealing with the nine proposed constitutional amendments and two initiated acts to be voted upon at the general election November 4. The following deals with Proposed Amendment No. 22.

By HENRY N. DORRIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Limitations to actual revenues and limitation of daily expenses of the legislature to $900 in excess of salaries and mileage allowances of members would be imposed by Proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 22, one of seven proposed amendments sponsored by the Arkansas Taxpayers Protective Association.

The proposed amendment, to be voted upon November 4, would provide that the governor, treasurer and auditor of state comprise a board which would estimate appropriate revenues and file its report with the secretary of state 30 days prior to the regular or special sessions of the legislature.

The proposed amendment would limit the legislature's appropriations to sums NOT in excess of the estimated revenues.

But, in event the legislature did appropriate in excess of revenues, the proposed amendment would provide that, such appropriations be ratably reduced except these sums fixed by the constitution, and to pay public debts.

The amendment further would prohibit diversion or appropriation of revenues for any other purpose than for which collected.

A limit of $800 a day for expenses of the legislature, in excess of salaries and mileage allowances for members, would be set up by Proposed Amendment No. 22. It would make the state treasurer and his official bondsmen responsible for money paid out contrary to the provision.

The proposed amendment reads as follows:

"The governor, treasurer of state and auditor of state shall compose a board and as such shall report to the secretary of state thirty days prior to each regular or special session of the general assembly, a careful estimate of all appropriate revenues for the period for which the appropriations shall be made, in which shall be set out in detail the several sums to accrue from the different sources and the purposes for which they are collected. The secretary of state shall file and record in full, the report upon a record kept for the purpose.

"The general assembly shall NOT make appropriations in excess of the appropriate revenues as shown by the report of the board to the secretary of state plus any additional revenues, if any, authorized by the general assembly while in session, to be estimated by the board and reported to the secretary of state. There shall be NO diversion or appropriation of revenues to any other purpose than that for which they are collected. Appropriations in excess of appropriate revenues for each purpose estimated, and reported as herein provided, shall be ratably reduced except to those to pay same and allowances fixed by the constitution and to pay the public debts, as evidenced by negotiable bonds, and shall be treated by the disbursing officers of the state. The expense of a session of the general assembly in excess of salary and mileage of members, is limited to an average of $800 per day. The treasurer of state, and the sureties on his official bond, shall be liable for the recovery of any money paid out of the treasury contrary to the provisions of this amendment."

MURPHY, N. C., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Three robbers who held up the Koker Creek, Tenn., postoffice and escaped yesterday, engaged a squad of Murphy police in a gun battle shortly after midnight killed city police officer and wounded two other officers.

Walter Bryson, of Cherokee county, North Carolina, and Jeff McPherson, 40, of Kentucky, two of the bandits were shot perhaps fatally, while the third escaped in the darkness. McPherson refused to say what part of Kentucky he was from.

Mack Carringer, city police of Murphy was killed instantly. George Leatherwood was shot in the right lung and Burt Savage was wounded in the arm. Toby Fair, the fourth policeman was not injured.

Fair said that C. G. Lingerman, of Koker Creek, called Carringer last night and told him that three men had robbed his store and the postoffice, located in the same building and had headed toward Murphy in an automobile bearing a North Carolina license number 308-528.

Carringer and the other officers went to the west edge of Murphy and waited. Shortly after midnight the car was sighted and halted. While the occupants were being questioned by Carringer one of the three suddenly drew a pistol and opened fire on the officers.

Lingerman came to Murphy today and identified the men as two of the three who robbed his store and the postoffice.

He said that after robbing him the three took him prisoner and left Koker Creek. About four or five miles from town they gagged him and tied him to a tree. After an hour or more he succeeded in freeing himself and getting back home.

The two are being held in jail here. McPherson is shot in the head and abdomen, while Bryson is wounded in the chest.

Athletics Win Series, Beating Cards 7-1

Earnshaw Breaks Card Batters For His Third Victory

Big Right-Hander Is Perfect and St. Louis Drops Last Game

HALLAHAN IS SUNK

"Wild Bill" Fails Cardinals—Retires After Second Frame

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—George Earnshaw, peerless right-hander, pitching his third consecutive victory, carried the Philadelphia

Athletics to their fourth win today and the world championship.

The St. Louis Cardinals were overwhelmed 7 to 1, and narrowly escaped a shut-out. Their iron tully came in the closing moments of the ninth inning.

Earnshaw Great
Opening up with two runs in the first inning, the Athletics put the game on ice for Earnshaw. The big right-hander never was better and he had the Cardinals ending out of his hand all the way. He fanned six men, and let down only for a moment in the ninth, when, with a tremendous lead, he passed two men and gave up a hit, which permitted the Cards to score once.

It was the climax to as thrilling and well-matched a World Series as baseball ever has seen. Behind the superb pitching of Earnshaw and Grove, the Philadelphia team made a few hits go a long way. Today was a typical game for them, when they earned seven runs on seven hits.

Earnshaw and Grove

Earnshaw actually pitched the second, third and fourth victories for Philadelphia; and Grove the first, but "Lefty" also was credited with Philadelphia's third victory, at St. Louis, when he relieved Earnshaw, who, however, had held the Cardinals scoreless.

Thus the American League's two star hurlers were credited with two victories apiece in this man's World Series—being all the four games that the Athletics won.

Each lovely, unexpected thing we see Along the highway of our common

Wakes in our hearts a singing melody

Sometimer it is a clump of blossoms

Which lift pure faces from the dusty

Sometimer when children run with

Rural Pupils To Get Social Course

The State Superintendent Backs Plan to Foster New Departure

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 8.—Development of the social instinct among rural students is being attempted in Illinois country schools this year through a series of plans devised by Dr. Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of Public Instruction, he invited the United Press.

The plans are based on a program of physical education for rural schools which was inaugurated at the beginning of the present school term. In charge of the program is Louis Kul-cinsky, a graduate of the University of Illinois.

As it is impossible for him to even attempt to visit the 10,400 rural schools in the state, Kulcinsky is directing his program through paper instructions to be carried out by the teachers.

The instructions consist of a list of exercises and games for both outdoor and indoor and they make it the teacher's responsibility to see that the children are taught to play various games during the noon and other recess periods.

Through these games and exercises,
Blair hopes to teach the children teamwork and the value of cooperation and help them to develop a social instinct so that in later life they will be able to "mix" in a social way without restraint.

"I believe it will go a long way toward bringing the children to a better understanding of the friends and lead to a spirit of cooperation and friendliness which will continue to grow even after school days have been completed," he said.

Blair said the plan has long been needed in the rural school.

"Physical education," he said, "has become a requirement in practically all of the public schools, but the rural districts have been neglected."

He said that in selecting a director for the work he had consulted with George Huff, athletic director of the University of Illinois, and a definite program had been worked out whereby the rural pupils would have physical education the year round.

No 'Mother Goose' For Lindy, Jr.—New Book Ready for Him

Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., won't have to bother with ordinary "Mother Goose" tales when he starts reading. The first child book for him will be "The Printed Pig" written by his grandmother, Mrs. Morrow. It's jacket design is shown above.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., will not start his education with the stereotyped
"cat" and "rat".
Nor will the offspring of the flying Lindberghs be launched into the alphabet on such words as fuselage or wing spread.

Charles Augustus, when he takes a pink thumb out of his mouth, will utter the one word "pig." For "The Printed Pig" is the title of the first child's book which he will receive.

It was written by his grandmother,
Elizabeth Morrow, who stopped long enough from campaigning for her husband, Dwight Morrow, for United States senator from New Jersey, to jot down some funny tales she picked up in Mexico while Mr. Morrow was ambassador there.

It is not only the first book to be presented Baby Lindbergh. It is said to be the first picture book for children to come from Mexico.

The first sentence Baby Lindbergh will trace with his forefinger when he gets old enough to read will be:
"He was painted yellow with pink ross on his back and a tiny rosebud on his tail."

The story tells of the search of Pita and Pedro, two little Mexican children, for a painted pig bank. The pictures are unusual, done in brilliant colors and typical of Mexico.

Mrs. Morrow got the idea of her book from the wonderful collection of toys owned by Count Rene d'Harnocourt in Mexico City. The count made some colored pictures of the toys and Mrs. Morrow wrote her story around them.

Pita and Pedro are real children.
They live in Cuernavaca where the Morrow family have a little week-end adobe house.

FELT BLUE AND DISCOURAGED

Lady Was Weak and In Pain —Took Cardui and Says It Helped Her.

Forrest City, Ark.—"I was weak and run-down, and had severe pains in my side and back," writes Mrs. L. H. Milton, who lives on Walnut Street in this city. "I was in bed for about five weeks, not able to do a thing. This caused me to be blue and discouraged."
"My mother gave me Cardui when I was a girl, and it helped me, so I decided to try it again.
I sent for it and began taking it.
After taking one bottle of Cardui I felt better. I kept on taking it and grew stronger. By the time I had taken three bottles, I was up and able to do my work."
"Now I am well and strong, care for the house, and have time to tell my friends what splendid things Cardui did for me."

If you are run-down, nervous, or suffer every month, take Cardui,

Says Gold Fish Are From China

Dr. Laufer Claims Oren- tals Mastered the Breed- ing Principals

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(UP)—Goldfish were unknown in Europe before 1691.
In this year they were imported from St. Helena. They had come to the island of St. Helena from Batavia.
Chinese settlers who emigrated to Java had originally brought them from China.

Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at Field Museum of Natural History, traced the history and development of the goldfish as a household pet in an article in the September issue of museum periodical.

According to Dr. Laufer, Charles Darwin knew that goldfish had their origin in China and believed they had kept in confinement there from an ancient period. The goldfish still occur in Chinese rivers in a wild state.

Not only has it been brought by the Chinese into a complete state of domestication, but also the numerous varieties and the many fantastic and picturesque monstrosities with protruding eyes or with three and four lobed tails are the products of Chinese skill and industry. These varieties were produced by a studied and conscious method of interbreeding.

As early as the 11th century the Chinese understood perfectly the principle of "breeding to a point" and the experiments to which they have subjected the fish are practically identical with those carried on by our modern biologists. The plastic material of which the goldfish is shaped can, within certain limits, be molded into almost anything in the hands of a skillful breeder. The great variability in the color of the skin, as well as in the form of the head, fins and tail, is the result of many centuries of domestication.

In China the goldfish is kept in garden ponds or in large pottery or porcelain basins, but never in glass globes as in America.

Pat Page, Jr., in Game

CHICAGO, (UP)—Harlan Orville
(Pat), Page, Jr., son of the Indiana University football coach, has entered his father's alma mater, the University of Chicago, and will learn his football under his father's famous coach, Amos Alonzo Stagg.

Young Pat is a quarterback and when he tries out for the varsity next season he will be competing with Paul Stagg, son of the Chicago coach, who then will be in his senior year. The elder Page was a star end on the Maroon conference championship teams to 1907 and 1908.

With a Stagg and a Page on the Chicago team, together with Bert Cas-sells, son of an end on the 1899 champions, and Michigan boasting a Yost and Heston, football time will be turned back to the days of old.

Ancient Greeks Said to Have Used Steam Heat

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(UP)—Ancient civilization cannot claim steam heat as one of its discoveries, for the Greeks used it in 500 B. C., according to a Chicago heating research bureau.
In the ruins of a palace at Foini on the Island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean sea, archaeologists discovered a room to which water was led in three conduits and then boiled in order to supply steam heat to bedrooms on the second floor.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by William Braucher

You Don't Say!

LIEB, who coached the Notre Dame line last year and handled the team during the illness of the Bald Eagle, made some interesting remarks out on the Pacific coast the other night. Lieb is now coaching at Loyola, Los Angeles, and here are a few of the burdens he said from his manly chest:

"Notre Dame will go through its eastern schedule this year undefeated. Southern California will do likewise in the west. When the two meet Dec. 6 on the coast, Southern California will hand the South Bend lads a lacing."

"Stanford will give Minnesota a football lesson Oct. 11."

"The big shots in the Big Ten this year are Purdue, Illinois and Northwestern."

"He Names Twomey"

"The best man on the Notre Dame team last year was not Carideo, Elder or Cannon. It was that tackle, Twomey. And nobody gave him a tumble. The All-America pickers needed a quarter-back so they chose Carideo. Cannon didn't wear a headguard, and that got him the All-America job."

"If Howard Jones still wants to know who broke up his plays at Chicago, here is the answer: Twomey. It was Twomey who broke the line, smeared the opposition and gave Cannon a chance to tackle the 'gent' with the ball."

Explains Saunders' Run
LIEB praised the blocking that enabled Russ Saunders to run back a kickoff 95 yards through the open field to score a touchdown against Notre Dame.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

PENN has only to beat Notre Dame to go through the season unbeaten and get the Rose Bowl assignment for New Year's Day, 'tis said. . . . Yes, that's all. . . . With Gene McEver on the sidelines with a twisted knee, Tennessee still has hopes of knocking off the Southern Conference title. . . . The Vols have lost only three games in five years. . . . When Oregon crossed St. Mary's goal line late last year, it was the only touchdown scored against Slip Madigan's lads. . . . Somebody with a flair for analysis reports that only 27 per cent of the Trojan touchdowns of 1929 were scored via the air route. . . . and 65 per cent of the scores resulted from running with the ball. . . . Jimmy Phelan ran into a mess of woe when Jenkins, not his butler, but his star halfback, was ruled ineligible the other day because of discrepancies in his arithmetic.

"That run didn't amount to anything," said Lieb. "He could have walked through there, the way his mates took out the opposition. You or I could have carried that ball to a touchdown. It weighs only 18 ounces."

"We were snoozing on the job when Saunders made his dash. The ball was kicked clear to the goal line, but not a Notre Dame man got inside the 30-yard line. They were all working on the theory of 'Let George do it.'"

"Saunders could have run into the next county without hindrance from Notre Dame. I don't pay ball carriers much. The boys who do the blocking win the ball games."

Wherewith, gentle reader, consider yourself instructed.

Pardon Will Not Save This Man

Convicted Man Carried on Prison Records Under Two Numbers

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 8.—(UP)—Fred Massa, recently convicted and sentenced to die in the electric chair for the murder of a filling station attendant, may be pardoned to straighten out prison records.

The pardon will not, however, prevent his execution, but will merely blot him off prison records as a prisoner serving a term for a statutory offense.

At present Massa is carried on prison records under two numbers.

After Massa entered prison on a statutory conviction, he was taken to Bucyrus and convicted of murder, hence the two numbers.

No action will be taken regarding a pardon until time for an appeal from the murder conviction has expired. If the pardon is granted before the appeal and the appeal confirmed, Massa would be freed of both charges.

Prayer Services Are Held Each Week Day For the Working Folks

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 8.—Overalls are "entirely proper" as church attire at morning prayer services held each week-day at the South Congregational Church.

"It is for the working people that we have arranged these daily prayer meetings at an early hour," the Rev. Carl B. Bare, the pastor, announced recently.

"I want men and women to drop in at the church on their way to work and I want them to feel that the clothes they wear at their labor are just as dignified and just as 'right' in this place of worship as the most formal attire. I'd like to see more overalls at these services."

BEHIND THE SCENES TODAY
Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her dreary home in Baltimore for a home in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROGERS, her mother, divorced Mitchell and married a man now a widower. MARGARET MITCHELL, young woman, photographer, is in love with the girl, and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to his love.

She is now in her new home, Mitchell asks JOSEPHINE PARKER, beautiful widow, to introduce her to the city. Mrs. Parker considers Celia a means to win Mitchell's affection and agrees to let her stay in her home. She leaves Baltimore for New York.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII

THE bright orange cap bobbed on the water for an instant, then a wave splashed over it. The second distress call was more feeble than the first.

Some of the other bathers turned at the cry, but Celia had struck off for herself straight out to sea. Most of the party were shouting and splashing in the surf. Others, diving from a raft, evidently could not hear the girl's shout.

Jordan had plunged after her. His long fast strokes cutting the water caught attention from the group on the shore.

"Look—someone's drowning!" Kate Duncan's hysterical soprano rose to a scream. The boys on the raft turned. Two of them dived into the waves and started swimming toward that spot far out, where a bit of orange cap and a girl's arm, raised and struggling, could be seen.

Jordan was ahead of them. He had nearly reached the spot. Suddenly the orange cap sank from view.

There were tumultuous cries from the shore: "She's gone under!" "Who is it?" "Somebody get a boat!" "Oh, why doesn't he hurry!"

A lifeguard came racing down the beach. His absence had been against rules. With the aid of the frantic spectators he launched the lifeboat. Lisl Duncan and one of the men got into the boat with him. There was one pair of oars. The lifeguard pulled on them manfully.

"It's Celia," Lisl was stammering. "Celia Mitchell! Oh, hurry, hurry—!" Lisl was crying and wringing her hands.

The crowd on the shore watched as though hypnotized. "He's got her!"

It was a youth standing on the raft who first saw Tod Jordan's arm emerge clutching at a figure which hung to him tightly. "He's got her!" the cry rang louder, taken up by those on the shore.

Now the two other swimmers had reached Jordan and Celia. They were trying to help him fight off the girl's grasping hold which left him powerless.

"Keep her afloat," one of the pair shouted. "The boat's nearly here."

Jordan struggled to quiet the girl. The lifeboat reached them. It was a matter of several desperate seconds to raise the half-conscious Celia from the water into the boat. Strong arms reached out and pulled Jordan in. He fell heavily against the seat, exhausted.

Lisl and the lifeguard attended the girl while the other youth rowed. It seemed a long time before they reached the shore. Then the guard picked up Celia and carried her up the beach. He laid her down, began to work over her.

"She's all right," he told Lisl. "See—she's come too. Want to get rid of some of that water she swallowed. Get back, everybody! Got back and give us room!"

His methods were effective. In five minutes Celia was able to stand and, with assistance, walk to the club house. Jordan and the guard led her away. They wrapped her in a bathrobe and let her lie back in a comfortable deck chair.

"I'm—all right," Celia insisted brokenly. She tried to smile, but the effect was not convincing.

"Darling, just be quiet now and rest. You'll feel better in a few minutes," Lisl said solicitously.

The lifeguard handed Celia something to drink. It was very hot and bitter, but she swallowed it. Then she leaned her head back and closed her eyes.

When she opened them again Tod Jordan was beside her. He was watching her face intently.

Celia smiled. There was a glow of color in her cheeks now. "You did it," she said. "You saved my life! How can I ever thank you?"

"There's nothing to be thanked for. Forget it. Feeling stronger?"

She said that she was. There was nothing whatever wrong with her now, but she owed this entirely to his bravery.

Jordan was modest. Anyone would have done what he did. He just happened to see her first. It was nothing at all.

Lisl appeared and asked Celia how she felt. The two girls went to the dressing room, where Celia changed from the bathing suit to her tennis dress. Someone supplied a flannel jacket and, thus wrapped warmly, Celia came back to the veranda.

"What am I going to do?" Lisl asked Jordan. "She says she won't go home. She doesn't want to spoil the party."

"Nonsense! Of course she's going home." The young man was wearing street clothes. "I'm going to drive her there."

Celia shook her head. "But it's nonsense. I'm perfect. All right, and I won't spoil Lisl's nice party. I've behaved badly enough as it is!"

"The car's waiting," Jordan indicated a black roadster with a wave of his hand. "Come on. We're leaving right away."

"You must!" Lisl told her. "It's sweet of you to want to stay, Celia, but what you need to do is get into bed and stay there until the shock's worn away. You don't realize it, but honestly you look terrible!"

Protesting, Celia was led to the waiting roadster. She knew she was weak. That terrible, terrible moment when she had found herself helpless still rose up before her—frightful and unforgettable.

Lisl waved farewell as they pulled away down the drive. Celia, dry, warm and comfortable, smiled at the man beside her.

"You ruined your afternoon," she said.

"I wouldn't say that."

"There was a pause and then Celia spoke slowly: "I'm sorry that I—was rude—when I met you today."

"You mean you wouldn't want to run away from me now?"

"Of course not. Why, I feel I owe you everything."

JORDAN took one hand from the wheel long enough to pat her arm.

"Don't say any more about that little adventure," he told her. "If it's made you change your opinion of me I can't even regret that you were frightened."

Something in his voice made Celia Mitchell blush deeply. Her eyes met his. She quickly looked away.

"I don't really understand how it happened," she said, changing the subject. "I've known how to swim all my life. It's the one sport I was ever any good at. Mother taught me when I was five or six years old."

"You were out a long way," Jordan said. "Probably didn't realize how far you'd gone, and those waves are tricky. It might have been an undertow. Did it feel as though something was pulling you down?"

Celia shook her head. "I can't say how it felt. It was terrible! All I remember is trying to fight and going down and having water all over me and—oh, please let's not talk about it!"

"That's right," Jordan agreed. He managed to divert her attention until the car turned into the drive at Larchwood. Jordan helped Celia from the car and a maid opened the door for them.

Evelyn appeared on the stairway.

"Why, Celia," she exclaimed, "I wasn't expecting you home so soon!" She hurried down to meet them.

Jordan explained what had happened. At once Mrs. Parsons busied the girl to her room. With the maid's assistance she quickly had Celia tucked into bed and the shades of the room lowered to create a restful atmosphere. Hilda brought a glass of hot milk with instructions for Celia to drink it.

She awoke refreshed. It was nearly six o'clock. Celia bathed and dressed for dinner. She found Mrs. Parsons in the living room.

"My dear child—did you have a good nap?"

Celia laughed. "Oh, yes. I'm entirely myself now. Mrs. Parsons, don't you think it was wonderful of Tod Jordan to risk his life to save me?"

"Indeed I do!"

They heard a telephone ring. In a moment Hilda appeared.

"Mr. Mitchell is calling, ma'am," the maid said.

"Mr. Mitchell?" Evelyn Parsons rose. "I'll take the call in the library, Hilda."

When the connection had been made, Evelyn's soft voice answered: "Yes, John. What is it?"

The man's voice was agitated: "What's this about Celia, nearly drowning at the boat club this afternoon?" he demanded. "Is she all right? Newspapers have been calling me. Where's Celia now?"

"Celia's here," Mrs. Parsons assured him. "She's—wait, I'll have her speak to you." She turned and called: "Your father wants to speak to you, Celia."

The girl took the telephone. "Hello, father! Yes, of course I'm all right. No—nothing happened. It was a swimming party and I got out too deep. I'm terribly ashamed! One of the men—Tod Jordan—swam out and got me, and then the lifeguard brought us in in a boat. What? Oh, I rested after I got home, and that's all there is to tell. Come home? Oh—do I have to?"

She turned, dismayed, to the older woman. Mrs. Parsons took the telephone and talked for several minutes. There was no dissonant John Mitchell. He said firmly that Celia was to return the next morning.

The dinner that followed was a quiet meal. Evelyn Parsons was busy with her thoughts, and Celia mournful at the prospect of returning to the city. After they arose from the table Celia wandered out on the porch. Tonight the moon was veiled behind clouds, but the stars were bright.

She turned as she heard a man's voice.

Scouts and Scouting

The Boy Scouts of America is without a doubt the greatest organization of boys in the world. The Scouting movement is not a local movement, a state movement, nor a national movement, but is a world wide movement. The Scout Oath:

On my honor I will do my best To do my duty to God and my country

And to obey the scout laws. To help other people at all times. To keep myself physically strong. Mentally awake, and morally straight.

Has your boy taken this oath? If not, he is missing one of the greatest things in a boy's life, the privilege of being a member of a world wide fellowship of boys.

Scouting teaches a boy citizenship. Scouting teaches a boy clean living. Scouting teaches a boy loyalty to others. Scouting teaches a boy co-operation. Scouting teaches a boy of today to become the proper man of tomorrow.

Hope has a good scout troop that has worked up from practically nothing but the pep and enthusiasm of a few good clean boys. This troop has not been given the co-operation they had hoped for and expected from the parents and the grown-ups of Hope. They have worked tirelessly and by their own efforts now have a troop worthy of Hope.

This troop is to hold a Court of Honor in the Elk's club room Friday night at 8 o'clock, and everyone is cordially invited to attend. This is entirely free, no admission being charged, and no collections being taken up.

If you wish to see your son or the son of one of your friends decorated for his work and advancement be present at this Court of Honor. You are urged to cooperate with your troop by being present.

Pair of Ancient Dice Discovered

Dice of Ancient Times Are Acquired By the Field Museum

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(UP)—Gamblers shot "craps" in Cleopatra's time and even before in much the same manner as they do now and a "seven" was an all important point, just as it is today.

Dice from ancient Egypt, including one "loaded" pair which have a marked tendency to throw 2's and 5's have been acquired for the Field Museum of Natural History. Most of these dice are of bone, but some are of stoneware.

In size, form and arrangement of number combinations they are almost identical with modern dice. One specimen, however, has numbers paired in different combinations.

According to museum authorities, there has been little if any change in the manner of playing games of dice from Ptolemaic times.

Cut out pies, cakes, pastries and cream for 4 weeks, go light on nuts, toes, butter, cheese, cream and fruit—take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning, before breakfast.

An 85 cent bottle of Kruschen lasts 4 weeks—Get it at Ward & Son's, Bryant's Drug Store, or any drug store in the world.

YOU CAN'T help admiring the charm of natural beauty, any more than you can help enjoying the natural mildness of a Camel Cigarette.

Camel's mildness starts in the sun-drenched fields where the tobaccos grow. Only the choicest of the golden Turkish and mellow Domestic leaves are selected for Camels. Through every step of their cure and manufacture the delicate, sun-ripe fragrance of these tobaccos is scientifically preserved. And so Camels come to you mild and delightful—not flat and flavorless.

Swing with the crowd to Camels. Learn the happy difference between true mildness and insipid flatness. Smoke without fear of throat-discomfort or after-taste—just for pleasure!

Love Crazy Man On Strange March

Badajoz Infantry Platoon Led on Wild Chase By Sergeant

BARCELONA, Sept. 30.—(UP)—A platoon of the infantry regiment of Badajoz customarily goes to Barcelona every day, to take a bath on the beach.

One day recently it went there as usual, commanded by Sergeant Juan Fornes. After the bathing was finished, the platoon was formed, and instead of returning to Barcelona, the platoon was ordered to walk in the opposite direction. When they got to San Andrus, they were marched through all the streets of the town.

Finally, after they had walked 15 kilometers—all out of their customary route—a soldier dared approach the sergeant, and asked him where they were going. The sergeant ordered the soldier to go back to the barracks, and present himself under arrest.

Later the sergeant, addressing the soldiers, told them they were engaged in the search for a woman, who was being held for ransom by a group armed with bayonets. The soldiers, having been approached by their superior, replied that they believed such a thing impossible, and finally persuaded the sergeant to march them back to Barcelona.

When Fornes's superior officers asked him what had happened, he tried to throw himself out of a window. Later he shot himself. The suicide was attributed to mental perturbations, resulting from disappointment in a love affair two years previously.

A Perfect Day for El Toro

Certain small Spanish towns that cannot support a bull ring improvise one by turning a bull loose in the street and letting amateur toreros try their hands with him. This picture, taken at the village of Valdemoro, shows the wind-up of such a festivity, with "El Torc"—the bull—winning practically all of the honors and the would-be bull fighters shuffling up the walls at top speed.

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 8.—(UP)—Installation of radio expenditure of nearly $10,000, in air mail planes of the National Parks Airways, Inc., now is underway.

E. J. Seely, radio engineer, said the installation is expected to be finished within the next month.

Intermediate wave length receiving sets will be placed in each of the seven planes. This will enable the pilots to receive weather reports.

The company operates planes between Great Falls, Butte and Salt Lake City.

Nebraska Cattle Business Said to Be Good

ALLIANCE, Neb., Oct. 8.—(UP)—Drouths and lack of pasturage have not interfered with the cattle business to any great extent in Nebraska, according to Robert Graham, president of the Nebraska Cattle Growers Association.

Cattle shipments for the fall have begun, he said, in all of the grazing centers and the indications are that the cattle-raisers will have an excellent year.

Association records show that during June, July and August 67,271 head of cattle were shipped to market. A substantial increase over the same period in 1929.

Snails of 40,000 Years Ago Same as Those Now

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 8.—(UP)—Snails that form one of today's table delicacies are just the same kind of snails that existed about 40,000 years ago, according to Dr. Frank C. Baker, curator of the University of Illinois Museum.

Dr. Baker has just completed a study of snails sent to him from Algeria that were found imbedded in rock of the stone age period. He said that the snail shells and other characteristics were the same as those of today.

State Heads Are For Women Jurors

Out of Ten, Eight Governors Favor Women Jurors Report Shows

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(UP)—The governors of 21 states in which women are permitted to serve on juries are all in the Illinois League of Women Voters what they think about it.

Mrs. Ralph B. Treadway, League president, has received ten letters in response to her inquiries from the 21 governors. Eight were unreservedly in favor of jury duty for women, while two said that they believed conditions were neither better nor worse under the new system.

The governor of Utah, George H. Dern, said women should serve on juries because "they exhibit excellent judgment in deciding the merits of cases. Their interests in the welfare of society are naturally as vital as keep as a man's."

Pennsylvania's governor, John S. Fisher, believes women's service on juries has been beneficial. Jury duty is a part of every citizen's duty, he said, and added he saw no reason for discriminating against women voters.

Governors Meyer Y. Cooper, of Ohio, and John Hammill of Iowa reported satisfaction with women on juries.

Governor Theodore Christian of Minnesota believes that women are more conscientious than men and more attentive to testimony.

Illinois voters are to decide the referendum on women jurors on November 4. Gov. Emmerson favors the measure.

New School Is Said To Be Most Unusual

University of Iowa Begins Experiment Under Prof. Norman Forester

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 8.—(UP)—A school of letters, believed by local educators to be the first project of its kind in the history of American education, was launched by the University of Iowa this fall.

The new school, under the direction of Prof. Norman Forester, internationally known for his work in humanism at the University of North Carolina, has grouped all of the languages under one head, and the organization for study of language and literature has been outlined much in the same way treatment is given to subjects in the school of religion, school of journalism, and similar departments of the university.

All of the university's language and literature departments—Greek and Latin, French and Spanish, German and English, are participating in the program. Professor Forester said he is seeking to break down artificial departmental barriers between these closely related subjects, and keep the common life and specialized interests of the languages in the foreground.

Sydney's Bridge Near Final Stage

Most Delicate Part of the Work, Joining Halves in Middle Complete

SYDNEY, Oct. 8.—(UP)—One of the largest feats in the history of bridge building is progressing steadily here as the final stages of Sydney's $35,000,000 harbor span are being pushed to completion. Final completion is scheduled December, 1931.

The most delicate part of the work—joining the two halves of the 1,650-foot span in the center, was accomplished on Aug. 19. The ends interlocked to a hair's breadth, and the work of fitting tons of complementary superstructure proceeded immediately.

The bridge, with approaches, will have a total length of 3,770 feet. It provides for four electric railway lines, a 58-foot roadway between curbs with a capacity of six lines of vehicular traffic. The bridge is a two-hinged arch structure, claimed to be the strongest and most rigid long span in the world. Its maximum capacity is estimated at 188 trains, 6,000 vehicles and 40,000 pedestrians hourly. The arch rises to a total height of 410 feet. The decking is 190 feet above sea-level, giving a clearance of 170 feet at high water, sufficient to accommodate passage of the largest steamers, even those of the future.

The contract is being carried out by the English firm of Dorman, Long & Company. Specifications were drawn by Dr. J. C. Bradfield, chief engineer of the New South Wales government.

Airplane Sales During August Total $1,161,792

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(UP)—Two hundred and forty-seven commercial and military airplanes were manufactured during August and 273 planes were sold during that period in the United States, according to a report just issued by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc.

The August production and sale of airplanes remained about the same as in July, according to the report. Of the total number of planes built, 49 units for military use. The balance were for commercial and private purposes.

The report estimates that the value of the planes, without motors, was $1,621,792.20.

Relatives Bargain For Rescue as Man Drowns

TIENTSIN, Oct. 8.—(UP)—Bargaining relatives cost a Tientsin man his life recently.

While on a pleasure trip he fell into the water at Shanhaikuan, near here. Relatives and friends attempted to rescue him but failed.

A fisherman offered to save him for $500. Relatives thought the price too high, but offered $130. The fisherman turned away. Then the relatives offered $180.

The fisherman still refused. Just as the relatives relented and agreed to the $500 price the victim's head disappeared in the water for the third time.

New Petrified Forest May Be World's Largest

PIEDMONT, S. D., Oct. 8.—(UP)—Uncovering of additional petrified logs in the Piedmont petrified forest four miles north of here, indicates it will be the largest in the world when fully dug out, according to geologists.

The length, girth and extent of the agatized wood already found promises to rank the local find as greater than the famous Arizona petrified forest.

Excavations this summer uncovered one log 35 feet in length and two feet in diameter which is said to be the largest ever found.

Rancher Finds Can Filled With Gold Dust at Spring

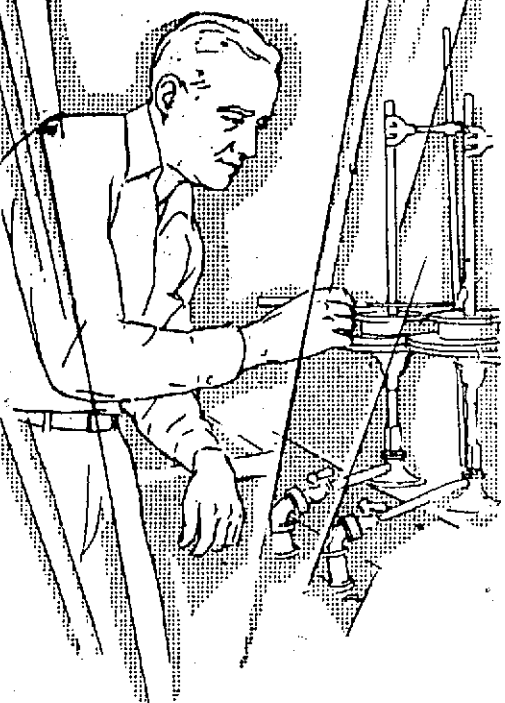

DEADWOOD, S. D., Oct. 8.—(UP)—"There's gold in them thar plains stranger" has become the phrase among old time prospectors of the Black Hills, following a find by Claude Adams, rancher, near here.

Caches made by early miners when threatened by Indians or when unable to carry their gold have been turned up before. Many homesteaders have come upon such caches of gold dust.

Adams was hunting cattle. Becoming thirsty he stopped at a spring. Under a grassy bank Adams saw a can for a cup. He pulled it out and found it full of gold dust.

At the jeweler's the gold was appraised at $7.45.
